Comparisons of the men who will play opposite each other in the Yale-Prince on game at Manhattan Field day after followers, although results am work is the thing, and the elever for hie well-wishers of one eresting struggle between Yale and rinceton would be right at centre. Tayor, Balliet and Wheeler will oppose Mcrea. St ilman and Hickok. They seem ery evenly matched. If the Yale trio save any the better of it, which is by in means certain, they should have a larder time than the Harvard centre ave them. Balliet should five Stillian more trouble than did Lewis. Wheeler and Hickok should furnish the est duel in the line. Taylor is more or es an unknown quantity, but, according orejorts, he is quick and tricky. Mackewas said to be all this, and heavy, too, but McCrea, the man who was to be soft for him, handled him nicely. Princeton men think they have the etter of it at tackles with Holly and a against Beard and Murphy. Mursayel Manshan. If Holly can hold bard he will do more than any man is year has done. Next to Newell, search breaks through sharper than any fithe tackles. The Yale ends seem to stronger, and back of the line the line seems to be far better even at guarter-back, for if Adee plays in his princheld form, he is as good as that surer-rated player King. So Yale seems to be a shade better through and through messes—witness be the favorite in the string, yet neither of these facts wins and will doubtless be the favorite in the string, yet neither of these facts wins messes—witness be the favorite in the string, yet neither of these facts wins messes—witness the Springfield contest. Princeton men say they feel confident might y good chance to win if they do, or their defense is always strong. ceton would be right at centre, Tay

LOVE IN A BOARDING-HOUSE,

Miss Hoffman and Mr. Corbit Furnish Yonkers with a Romance.

Yonkers has a real romance, and as a onsequence, the young people are all worked up over it. Miss Minnie Jones keeps a fashionable boarding-house at 115 Locust Hill avenue. Miss Katherine fainted on the floor of the Real Estate Hoffman, of Leavenworth, Kan., was a guest. She is a relative of President guest. She is a relative of President.

the Nevada Senator.

William Pitman Corbit was also a guest. He and Miss Hoffman took long walks together and, as Mr. Corbit puts it, they discovered their hearts were stuck together like two burns. He quietly came to this city and furnished a home at 44 West Ninety-third street. He showed her his place and she assisted him in the purchase of silverware, &c., but nothing was said about marriage.

Saturday he suggested that they drive to the First M. E. Church, at Yonkers. She consented. On the way they picked up Col. Pursell, brother-in-law of the late Gen. Hancock, and Mrs. Millward, wife of the late Mayor of Yonkers.

They acted as witnesses to the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. F. M. Davenport. The story of the marriage leaked out only yesterday.

Mr. Corbit is manager of the Haeger storage warehouse on Eighth avenue.

Mr. Egan was not at home when a representative of "The Evening World" called to turn over the money which had been collected for him, but his family were very grateful to those who contributed to the fund for their relief. Egan has temporary employment in a whole-sale grocery-house, but his earnings are small. Mrs. Egan is anxious to obtain a position as janitress, but would accept almost any employment.

The family still occupy the house on One Hundred and Eighty-fourth street, east of Amsterdam avenue, but could not say how long they would be allowed to remain in possession.

A Joke on Somebody.

Last week a customer of ours bought some Mink Trimming from us at ninety-eight (98c.) cents per yard, who, finding it didn't match her other Furs, asked her husband to return it and get credit for the same. By mistake he took it to one of our competitors, who, thinking it was bought of them, allowed him credit at the rate of one dollar and ninety-eight (1.98) cents per yard for it.

Pretty hard to convince that customer that she hadn't secured a bargain from us, don't you think?
